ABOUT MUSTARD

Mustard is an organisation that exists to transform lives through Jesus in schools. We do this through our Student Movement consisting of student-led Lunchtime Groups, and our Schools programs that are aimed at exploring faith and life in big group presentations.

Mustard Student Movement

The Mustard Student Movement is a movement of young people committed to living out their faith at school. The primary expression of the Student Movement is through Lunchtime Groups, where communities of Christian students gather together weekly, explore ideas of faith and life, and encourage one another to live it out in action. Mustard recruit student leaders to run these lunchtime groups and then empower, equip and encourage them to be leaders for Jesus in their schools.

Schools Programs

Mustard's Schools Programs are big group presentations which may be in the form of a chapel service, a program that is integrated into a faith week or an extended presentation with discussion. We take the cultural norms young people face today – from mental health to social media to identity and present them with a Christian world view. The goal is to involve the lunchtime group from the school or other Christians so that students have a Christian connection in the school after the program is over.

ABOUT THE POSITION

Your role with the Student Movement would be to assist in the training and mentoring of student leaders. This will involve individual mentoring, assisting with group training and networking between students and visiting lunchtime groups. You may need to be available to visit a school weekly to help students establish a group and ensure it is running smoothly.

You will be required to visit youth groups, camps, churches and gatherings with a view to inspiring students to start new lunchtime groups.

The role will also involve leading presentations, devotions or workshops in schools.

You will also be required to use your network and establish new networks to build Mustard's connection with new schools, churches and organisations.

KEY RESPONSIBILITIES

- Participate in the support given to Student Leaders, including communicating with leaders, visiting groups, coaching leaders, referring resources and facilitating connection between groups
- Be the key mentor for several Student Leaders
- Assist in the running of some of the Student Leader zoom training and sessions
- Assist in the planning and delivery of Mustard-run Student conferences
- Be involved in presentations to youth groups, camps, churches and conferences to inspire new Lunchtime Group Leaders
- Build new connections with schools and churches
- Be a key instigator of fundraising for Mustard in Tasmania

Key Selection Criteria:

A passion for following Jesus and seeing the growth of His Kingdom

Mature understanding of the Bible and the Christian faith (formal theological training not essential)

Strong interpersonal and communication skills, with youth and adults

Team Leader

Training/mentoring skills

An understanding of the context of religion in high schools and the issues facing young people today

Self-motivated and highly organised

Desired Skills

Confident public speaker/ presenter

Other Information:

The successful applicant will need a current Working with Vulnerable People Check.

The applicant must have a degree of flexibility given that from time to time there will be events, meetings and preparation on different days during the week and outside of regular business hours.

The applicant must also sign Mustard's Code of Conduct.
